

Senior Consultant (m/w/d) in Management Consulting

Locations: Munich, Hamburg, Shanghai

Your tasks

As a Senior Consultant at Strategy Engineers you will take on the different challenges a management consultant faces in technology-driven industries such as the automotive sector. You are a fully integrated project team member and will work together with our experienced consultants on a daily basis. You are working directly with and for our customers.

You are working on clearly defined project modules and you independently carry out data analyses, interviews or workshops.

The results you have developed will be presented to our customers after consultation and alignment within the project team.

Your benefits

- » From day one, you are working independently on a defined project module or work package at a real client project and on topics that drive the upheaval of technology-driven industries
- » In order to guarantee you a steep learning curve at all times, we put great emphasis to consulting-specific training to develop your skills
- » We offer an individual mentoring program and a distinctive feedback culture to optimally promote and support your career
- » Entrepreneurship is very important to us - that is why we take great pride in having you as part of our junior team and helping us to shape our company
- » Our modern office is located in the heart of the city

Your profile

- » Excellent university degree in a STEM subject at a renowned university
- » First relevant, professional experience through internships in a management consultancy or technology-driven industry
- » Fascination for technology and strategic questions going beyond the actual product itself
- » Strong entrepreneurial thinking and acting
- » Excellent analytical skills
- » Team player, good communication skills, empathy, flexibility, enthusiasm and the willingness to take responsibility
